

Clothes and Textiles of Anatolian Greek Refugees: Embodied Memories on Display

AUTHOR Eleni Chasioti

COLLECTION EDITED BY Joseph H. Hancock II

COLLECTION
Fashion and Personal
Style Studies

EDITION
1st edition

MARKET
College/higher education and Professional and scholarly

This course reading...

- Offers an original material-culture perspective on forced migration, focusing on clothing and textiles as carriers of memory, identity, and resilience.
- Illuminates the lived experiences of Ottoman Greek refugees after the Greco-Turkish War through personal narratives and historical context.
- Bridges history, dress studies, and migration studies to deepen understanding of post-conflict societies.
- Highlights the role of museums and collections in preserving refugee heritage and sustaining intercultural memory.
- Ideal for students, researchers, curators, and educators in fashion studies, museum studies, cultural history, and forced migration studies.

What can clothing and textile artefacts tell us about the identities, experiences, and resilience of displaced Anatolian Greek communities, and how can we maintain intercultural memory?

Escaping the coast of Asia Minor, over one million Anatolian Greeks sought refuge in Greek territory before, during, and after the Greco-Turkish War (1919-1922), endangering their memories and cultural heritage. Examining the clothing people chose to bring with them such as wedding dresses, and the textile trades they developed, including rug weaving, Clothes and Textiles of Anatolian Greek Refugees aims to shed light on complex historical events and deepen our understanding of the people in this post-conflict society.

Author Eleni Chasioti further highlights the significant role of contemporary museum collections that collect and preserve items in relation to forced migration as catalysts for maintaining intercultural memory and showing a path to healing and progression.

Inviting contemporary readers to weave together the fabric of past lives, this book is ideal reading for students of Fashion and Personal Style Studies, Fashion and Museum Curation, Forced Migration and Refugee Studies, Archaeology, History, and History of Art.

Eleni Chasioti is a Greek-born, UK-based independent curator and writer who is endlessly interested in exploring lived experiences within material culture and everyday objects. Eleni has a background in Archaeology and Art History and holds a master's degree in Fashion Curation from London College of Fashion. She lives in South East London with her family.

Consumer print and ebook pricing available on the LPP website.

Institutional print and ebook pricing available through your chosen library vendor.

This title is available as part of the LPP Library collection.
For pricing, inquire at contact@livedplacepublishing.com.